THE subscriber by appointment from the Commissioner of Patents is Agent of the U S Patent Office for the purpose of receiving and forwarding all the time all such models, specimens of ingredients and manufactures, as shall be intended to the patent office, or deposited herein which will be received and forwarded, free of expense and risk to their owners and with all possible despatch. The subscriber will prepare Caveats Specifications Assignments and all the necessary Papers and Drawings, will make researches into American and Foreign works for establishing the validity or utility of inventions, and render advice on all legal and scientific matters respecting the same. Patents secured in Europe and other countries.

By application at this office, inventors are saved the time and expense of a journey to Washington and delay there as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. The experience of fourteen years practice—an extensive collection of future works documents, drawings &c on mechanical subjects and the Patent Laws—of patents of different countries, collected at much expense during the long time this office has been established, and to which daily additions are being made together with accounts here kept of inventions patented at Washington, enable me to afford important assistance and information to inventors desirous of securing Patents, which in other respects might be difficult of attainment.

ROOFING WINDOW SHUTTERS &c

FOR

THE subscribers beg to call the attention of all interested in roofing to their GALVANIZED IRON PLATES and to the many advantages which they possess over all metallic and other substances heretofore used for this purpose, possessing as they do, the strength and lightness of iron without its liability to rust having now been tested several years, both in this country and in Europe. They are also less subject to expansion and contraction from sudden changes in the atmosphere than common Tin Plate Iron, Zinc &c, or any other metal now used for roofing and consequently form a much better and tighter roof, requiring far less frequent repairing, whilst the first cost is but a little more.

The subscribers would also call the attention of dealers and workers in metals, to the many other purposes to which Iron thus protected can be applied in a general form it is applicable to all articles of iron which it is desirable to protect from the action of the atmosphere. And they would especially call the attention of those interested in TELEGRAPHIC LINES, either Galvanized Wire which is now almost entirely used in Europe and which answer every purpose as a conductor of electricity, costing only about one half as much as copper, and possessing equal durability with it.

Having lately erected works in the city for the purpose of galvanizing Nails Spikes Bolts Wire &c they will be able to furnish any article which may be desired. A supply of Plates (manufactured in Europe) constantly on hand from 16 to 32 wire gauge.

The Sugar-Coated Pills.

A NEW SARSAPARILLA PREPARATION

To cure Diseases, Purify the Blood! To avoid them, keep it pure!!

THE PREMISE OF THIS which exposes the human frame to the infection and virulence of every class of disorders proceeds directly or indirectly, from a morbid state of the system caused by

IMPURE BLOOD.

HALSEY'S SUGAR COATED MAGIC LIFE PILLS The originator of the only true and genuine Sugar coated Pills must respectfully informs the enlightened public, that this new and elegant preparation can be obtained only from advertised agents and at the proprietor's establishment No 23 Broadway N York—Price 25 cents a single box or three for one dollar.

G W LADD Agent for Bangor

Among the numerous remedies which stand responsible on the basis of its great name, none perhaps which have acquired so great celebrity and extensive sale in a short space of time as this invaluable Pill. They have gained their high reputation alone by their good works. Those who once try them always use them again. They are grateful to the stomach,—they improve the functions of digestion and nutrition and circulation. They restore the tone and appetite and create a natural warmth invigorating which follows through the whole system, giving it greater vitality and activity. The experience of thousands attest to their good effects. After using them for a short time the heretofore wretched invalid finds that all disagreeable and unhealthy humors have left his system. His digestive organs rise from their proper functions, his blood regains its wonted purity, the oppressive sense of weakness and pain departs, and his body becomes endowed with renewed strength and vigor—while the mind resumes its original vivacity and cheerfulness. Such are the results produced by Halsey's Sugar coated Pills the mildest, yet most effectual preparation of the class in use.

In BILIOUS complaints of costiveness, indigestion, Dyspepsia, and all other disorders of the stomach they produce the most happy results. For Sores, Boils, Spitting, Tetter, Erysipelas, Eruptions of the Skin, Scrofulous Humors and many other like diseases arising from IMPURE BLOOD they have become highly celebrated. Hundreds of certificates have been received from individuals who after having taken them for a few weeks, according to the directions which accompany the box, were cured of the most afflicting case of scrofulous affections. They give Good Blood for Bad. Bottles of the boasted Sarsaparillas contain less of the true virtues of that valuable plant and are less effectual than a single box of these extraordinary Pills. In Colds Coughs, Influenza Sore Throat Headache Giddiness &c, they are recommended with entire confidence, the relief in these cases is quick and permanent. For Fever and Ague Fever Asthma Piles Loss of Appetite Dropsy, Jaundice Worms, Costiveness General Debility, and many of the various other diseases to which the human system is liable they have proved an invaluable remedy. Their action on the bowels is of the mildest character, even delicate ladies never cause griping or uncleasantness yet they are searching and efficient. It is impossible by words to give an adequate idea of the great and good effects these pills produce and their superiority over every other remedy of a similar class, a trial only will explain the wide difference. The unhappy invalid after having tested but a single box of them will with joy for the unexampled change wrought in his health, bear testimony to their uncommon virtues.

N B The coating of sugar adds nothing to the great virtues of the Magic Life Pills, it is their uncommon powers in promoting health, on which all their clients stand, notwithstanding this they are the original sugar coated pills. The proprietor made this valuable improvement to preserve their curative virtues entire as well as to render them pleasant to the taste, yet unlike duals of no integrity have counterfeited other pills coated them, and through the base and silly pretension to a patent are distributing them about the country, deceiving the public by imposing them as Halsey through the already acquired reputation and popularity of the genuine Halsey's Sugar coated Pills. In order to get the true and original sugar coated pills, see that the engraved signature (G W Halsey) is on the label of each box, and buy only of advertised agents.

From the Western Star, a large newspaper, published at Dickstown Ill. Name

Elder Downs, an acquaintance of ours, was himself an invalid for a long time, and was thought to be far gone with the consumption, a disease hereditary in his father's family. DEAFNESS CAN BE CURED.

COOPER'S ETHEREAL OIL—A prompt and lasting remedy for DEAFNESS, also for pains and discharge of matter from the Ears. Hundreds of cures in cases deemed utterly hopeless have finally established its superiority over every former Medical discovery.

This valuable Acoustic Medicine is a compound of four different Oils, one of which, the active and principal ingredient, is obtained from the bark of a certain species of Walnut, a new and effectual agent in the cure of deafness.

Persons who had been deaf for 10, 15 and even 20 years have been permanently cured by using this oil. In not so numerous cases emphatic have been the testimonials in its favor, that the inventor claims for it the distinction of an Infallible Remedy, in all cases, when the Ear is perfect in its organization.

John S. Sayward,—Editor.

MONDAY, MARCH 22, 1847.

☞ The Lowell Journal states that several of the liquor dealers in that city have given up the business. The recent decision of the U S Court on the license law question has brought to this result. We hope that the dealers in liquor in our city will follow the example of the distinguished and bring their influence in favor of the best welfare of the community, and in favor of others live, instead of adding to the desolation of human happiness and human life in order that they may lay up a few vile coppers. There never was a time when the liquor dealers of our city could do so much good as at the present time, in coming out as practical temperance men and in yielding up a traffic which panders to the depraved appetites of men.

Another Major Generalship vacant.

A Telegraphic despatch to the True Sun states that Col Cumming of Georgia, whose commitment as Major General took place at the same time with Col Benton's, also declines the commitment. The President has, of course, three vacancies to fill at his own discretion.

☞ Among the individuals now rumored as likely to receive the nomination of Major General are Col. Cushing, Col Fremont, (who is soon to be in law of Senator Benton,) and Generals

Taste and Style,

OR

A Discriminating Mind.

Even a man's miraculous mistakes this bears the brand of.

Many persons, both in their conversation and writings, habitually indulge in the use of such inappropriate and extravagant terms, that no discriminating mind can feel any respect for their opinions, though given in their own favor—this is often the case with editors and other writers, who, if they do not actually describe a notoriously unworthy man, or censure meritorious one without cause, yet from a naturally low and vitiated taste, and the want of a just discrimination on what is fit and proper, so egregiously overdo and bedaub all they write, as to counterbalance all their well intended, but misguided efforts. This is often the case, I suppose, other people as vain as them selves.

Some times this silly, fulsome daubing is the work of a low minded, intemperate sprig of vile aristocracy, whom education can not divest of that rowdyish, vulgar disposition which characterized his early youth. But all such persons and their writings have not a slight and temporary influence or esteem in any enlightened community. They soon come to be regarded according to their real worth, and pass away like the forgotten shadow of yesterday's cloud. Vulgarity is short lived, but mind is immortal.

If the superlative degree is used with all common occurrences, and about ordinary men and things, what is left for extraordinary occasions, and men and objects of transcendent power and interest? At all times, good taste, as well as substantial and discriminating justice, should suggest measured and appropriate terms, adapted to the time, place, and object. Bombast, hyperbole, is usually the product of an unrelated, undiscriminating mind, sometimes in vain and superfluous spirit, and is ever offensive to good taste, whatever may be its motive or its object.

Some times this ridiculous and pompous hyperbole is the puerile offspring of a silly and vicious spirit, which so overrated its own capacity, and underrated that of others, as to render its authors quite presumptuous and disagreeable to those who witness their rude and disgusting arrogance, so full of irony, vulgarity, and impudence. These infatuated, miserable creatures, will some times step up to a man of sense, and indulge in their contemptible daub, and flatter themselves that their insolent, vulgar irony is not seen through, by a man, who forty years ago thirty years ago, had forgotten more useful knowledge than they ever possessed, or ever will if they should live to the age of Methuselah.

The man, who with the smooth and respectable exterior of a gentleman, has a dark and deceitful heart, and endeavors to pursue a covert mean, heartless course, towards his best friends, smiling and flattering at one corner of his mouth, to one person, and sneering and ridiculing him to his opponent, out of the other, may simpleton like, please himself with the idea that he is a wonderous wise and successful hypocrite, of whose true genius no one dreams but we can inform him that men of moderate discrimination readily perceive his shallowness and look upon his despicable character with ineffable scorn and contempt.

To the other hand how refreshing it is to a pure, chaste mind to perceive an ingenuous, high minded individual, in all the walks of private and social life, treating you in the spirit of honest, manly frankness, respecting your rights, consulting your feelings, and if speaking, writing or publishing matter in which you are interested, doing it in good faith, appropriate, and good taste, agreeably to the well known indisputable facts of the case. Such persons possessed of both mind and manners, constitute a green spot amidst the dark waste of perfidiousness, fraud, and meanness, to which we have alluded, the authors of which not only want of justice, discrimination, and taste, but exhibit strong symptoms of that disease denominated "an original defect of brain."

LEONIDAS

Worcester, March 18 1847

The Washington correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce says—

It is not generally known, and it will be news to some parties concerned, that the Resolution, of the 3d March, for refunding the money advanced for the organization of the army, &c of volunteers, embraces a class of individuals who have made advances for these purposes. In those States, like Massachusetts, which refused to make these advances, they were made by individuals, by company officers, and by private subscription. The Massachusetts regiment was equipped at the expense of their officers and a private subscription of thirty five hundred dollars. Col Cushing advanced sixty five [illegible] and the Captains a considerable sum.

Santa Anna's Proclamation.

A long address from Santa Anna has been published. The main object of the Proclamation seems to be to vindicate himself against the charge of inactivity, by showing the immense difficulties with which he has had to contend, since he assumed the command of the army.

After citing the parallel case of Napoleon, taking command of the army of Italy, at a time when that army was in want of every thing, Santa Anna goes on to say,—

Full of fire, and desirous of glory, the gallant republicans of the army of the Alps would not have been able to do what they did, if, instead of finding the beautiful and fertile fields of Italy, they had met with barren deserts, obliged to cross in the horrid nudity in which they were.

No help could be given them for the moment, but their young general from the snowy tops of the Alps, pointed out to them the cities which would become a prize to their army. They saw with wonder the magnificent palaces to which the victory led them. Has the Mexican soldier the same perspective? He has to march through his own country, and he is obliged to respect the houses and property of his countrymen, who expect from him protection.

Nearly all deserted, it does not offer shelter against the elements, nor a sufficient quantity of water for the men and horses. If we advance, it is necessary to put from distance to distance, depots of provision, where the soldier will be able to find, after being worn down by fatigue and hunger, the necessary resources to live on. Without this it seems impossible for the army to make any movement. Has anything been done concerning this important matter, although I have made thousands of representations?

It is very painful to tell it, Mexicans but I cannot keep it secret any longer. Nothing has been done, and what is worse, I see no prospect of doing it. The army is kept in a state of great nakedness, and the most dreadful misery so much so that for twenty-five days I have not been able to pay their rations, which have therefore been taken on credit.

The heroic defenders of Monterey, wounded by the balls of the enemy, are lying here quite abandoned without any other assistance than that which the charity and patriotism of a few inhabitants gives them.

There is not in this, fellow citizens, any exaggeration. I appeal to the testimony of the authorities of San Luis. Since the 25th of December it has been scarcely possible to assist the troops with two days pay, which has served more to pay of old debts than to attend to present necessities.

Of the $2,000,000 appropriated for the expenses of the army, only $175,000 have come to hand which was received in December last, and nothing this present month; and in order to help the great whole was compelled to engage my personal credit for the amount of $20,000, which was lent on my pledge of my private property, and which was sent to the division in observation of Tampico. Could the army, under such a terrible circumstances, make a movement?

Far, very far, am I from insinuating that the Mexican soldier depends upon the promptness with which his country pays him, but there are difficulties which it is impossible for us to overcome. It is impossible to give rations to the troops when there are no rations, or to pay them when there is no money.

This is as described the situation of the army, as courageous and as full of patriotism as any other in the world, which will sacrifice itself with its chiefs for the national honor; it is its wish, and it asks for assistance only to satisfy its wants, that it does not be able to approach the enemy, to sustain the name and the glory and liberty of the nation to which it belongs.

Useless have been—to this day all the endeavors I have used, all the steps that I have taken, having in view the receipts of the necessary funds—Nor are over notes were almost daily repeated, showing the horrid state in which the troops were placed. The answers to all these were promises and remote hopes which I fear will never be realized, or if so they come perhaps too late.

I think that I have fulfilled by this my duties, because it is not for me to propose the way of providing the necessary funds, and I have only to say that, if the nation wishes, as I think, to carry on the war it must be known that those small sums that have been from time to time remitted are not of great help because they will do only to cover the want of a day, they are not sufficient to make a permanent impression nor to base further operations upon.

If those who are able to do it are not willing to help the army, the only protection which the country has will be exposed, and they may lose all, with their independence, and they will be obliged to transmit to their posterity a name full of ignominy.

Countrymen! I would have omitted to present to you such a picture as that given to you now, and which I know will fill your hearts with bitterness, but I find myself compelled to give you notice of all that occurs. It would be a crime were it not brought to your notice.

I do not accuse any one, nor do I direct myself to any body, but I cannot consent that the honor of the army and to me also, should suffer, when in no period of our history has the army deserved more credit and more esteem from the whole country.

Concerning myself, I shall repeat for the last time, Mexicans, that I still recollect that the nation called me to defend her in the present contest, and to restore to her, her liberty, honor and glory, or to perish with her. This is my only desire, and I don't want, nor do I pretend to anything else.

But if, unfortunately, credit should not be given to my words—if, against all hopes, somebody should not think me capable of keeping faith with them, I shall prove it with my deeds. Tell me it is desired to deliver up the command of the army, and I will do it, although I would lose by that the last opportunity to acquire an immortal name because, when it concerns my country—her feelings and glory, there is nothing, nothing in the world difficult to me.

I will inform it is thought useful not to take the power which was conferred upon me a few days ago, because I have a ready said more than once that I do not wish any more employment, nor any other honor than that of saving my country, in the present war with the United States, and as soon as that has been done, I shall retire to my domestic hearth and no human power will be able to take me from thence to public life.

And if still my sincere denial is not sufficient, if my presence is thought dangerous on the soil on which I was born, I shall seek in a foreign country an asylum for my last days, in which I shall pray constantly for the prosperity and increase of my country.

Far, very far, am I from having an ambition less noble or praiseworthy, because undeceived of the value of power and distinction, there only remains to me one pleasure, which is to deserve and receive the applause and esteem of my fellow citizens.

Lines To E——.

Hope on fair maiden let thy dreams,
Of fair as bliss still cheer the on
The goal thou seekest to thine seems,
Perhaps a point not to be won.

But farer far thy prospects are
Than yet thy doubting heart would own,
Hopes glimmering in the distance far,
May prove true beacons to thy soul.

When death shall give to quench the flame
That love enkindling in thy breast
Let time's unfolding in its train
Bring to thy soul its wished for rest.

Thy pure, first offering, at the shrine
Of love, may find a fond return
If those we pray grant a little time
To bind for whom thy heart does burn.

Then let the gushings of thy heart
In gentle ripples still flow on
Twill meet the stream which never part,
But sweetly mingle into one.

Mrs Pond.

Died in Oldtown on the 23d ult at about three o'clock P M after a severe illness of ten days duration Mrs Hannah Perkins widow of the late Benjamin Pond of Wrentham, Mass aged 76 years 8 months and 27 days.

It is seldom that such a woman dies, because it is so dom that such a one lives, and when the event does occur, there is due to departed excellence a more extended and affectionate memorial than the lone record of the fact that "she died."

The original endowments of Mrs Pond's mind and heart were such as laid the foundation for a character at once firm, decided, consistent, and affectionate and upon this foundation there was reared a superstructure of uncommon symmetry and loveliness. Let nothing here said be attributed to the partiality of friendship, whatever memorial was written of her must of necessity have been written by a friend for an enemy, it is believed could not be found in the whole circle of her acquaintance. Still her portrait is here sketched in colors no other than those of exact truth, and if anything should seem extravagant, the reader may rest assured that it can appear so only to those who have not been favored with the means of knowing her worth. It is not pretended that she was faultless but whatever her faults may have been, the writer never knew them, and never heard of their existence. With a clear view of the holiness of the divine law and an experimental knowledge of herself she was in her own estimation a green sinner and rested her hope of pardon and of heaven upon the unmerited grace of God, as exhibited in the vicarious atonement of Christ alone. In her wisdom dwelt with prudence and uncommon firmness and decision of christian character was habitually exhibited in connection with the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit. Hence it is not strange that she was both respected and beloved as far as she was known.

The recollection of her fidelity and affection and prudence as a wife—her tolsomeness and watchfulness and tenderness and patience as a mother,—her dignity and sweetness as a widow,—her constancy as a friend;—her kindness as a neighbor, her humanity and faith and love and zeal for God's truth, as a christian, the devoted, yet tasteless and utterly unostentatious one, while it is unspeakably precious and consolatory to bereaved and mourning friends cannot fail of usefulness to others. She walked with God, and in all her christian course the love of Christ seemed the fountain of her happiness and the manspring of her action and allied as it was with strong sense and delicacy of mind, it lent a peculiar charm over her whole character. Within the domestic circle her excellencies shone with the mildest and sweetest radiance. There the cheerful fireside the kind and cordial greeting, the assiduous attentions to the comfort of family and friends, all all proclaimed the presence of that virtuous woman of whom Solomon has given an immutable description. Beyond that circle, her kindness like the genial warmth of spring was felt, rather than seen by all around her.

Mrs Pond was endowed with a quick perception of the feelings of others and governed by a wise discretion which never permitted her to disturb unnecessarily the feelings of individuals or the tranquility of society. While the most lovely christian virtues were happily blended in her character, there was one for which she was peculiarly distinguished, that virtue was christian meekness.

Having become the hopeful subject of renewing grace near the time of her marriage which took place about the 18th year of her age, she united herself with the congregational church in Wrentham at the same time with her husband who finished his course with joy about 20 years before her. Her life was long enough to test the sincerity of her profession and her trials and her deportment under them were sufficient to demonstrate the value of her religious principles. The disease which terminated her pious and lovely career, though short, was sufficiently protracted to afford under it the last trial, a full exhibition of those virtues which in health hallowed and adorned her character. So close had been her walk with God that when apprised of her approaching change, she looked upon it not only without apprehension but with the utmost serenity mingled with holy joy. Though she expressed herself with characteristic humility, it was evident she felt that she had no preparation to make. Her lamp was trimmed and in order, and she had long been waiting for her Lord. Thankful for the many alleviating circumstances which attended her illness with a heart overflowing with gratitude to God, for the tokens of his grace and for the glorious prospect heore her, and for the sympathy and kindness of friends around her, she was enabled to anticipate the parting home in a manner which testified that she was ready to depart. All her social attitude was for others—for the spiritual welfare of her children and especially of her beloved daughter with whom she had lived many years and who had been several weeks confined to a bed of sickness and was able to see her but once after her case became alarming. When on that occasion she was carried into the room of her dying mother, it might have reminded one, of the last visit of Joseph to the expiring patriarch when it is said, "Israel strengthened himself and sat upon his bed."

Yet that daughter of her anxious love, and every other object of her heart's fondest earthly attachment she was enabled to commend to her covenant God and then resign with a sweet composure and submiss on which converted the chamber of death into a privileged place "Just on the verge of Heaven". Afterward she being told that her daughter wept much she instantly replied—"Tell her I weep not for me, but weep for herself and for her children". Reference being made to her sufferings she remarked "They are nothing when compared with what my Saviour endured for me, and besides

"How can I feel death's cold embrace
While in the Savior's arms?"

On Monday there seemed some mitigation of symptoms and her friends began to indulge the hope that she might recover. But when enquired of as to how she should feel in view of such an event her answer was, that having considered herself so near home, she should feel sadly disappointed.

That disappointment she was not destined to experience, for during the following night, new and more alarming symptoms appeared and she gradually sunk to rest. "The peace of God which "passeth all understanding" evidently reigned in her heart, and the faith by which she had walked in life and in health, triumphed in death. The full assurance of hope and indicated by all her language so long as the power of speech continued, and when that failed, seemed still to be written on her brow. S H M

BY THE LAST MAIL.

From Mexico.

Santa Anna marching with his whole Army upon Saltillo and Monterey—His army, 20,000 men—Senor Atocha's Commission—Gen. Scott's troops have commenced landing below Vera Cruz, &c.

Advices by way of New Orleans from Mexico, February 28th, announce most positively that Santa Anna has commenced a march with his whole Army upon Saltillo and Monterey.

His force, it was absolutely stated, was over twenty thousand men.

On the 7th of February, he had accomplished about one third of the distance across the desert country from San Luis Potosi to Saltillo.

Santa Anna has raised $180,000 and has pledged his own property as security. The Bishop of Gaudalaxara has offered $30,000 for the support of so dress.

The Governor of Vera Cruz had declared a forced loan of $40,000. There was a proposition before Congress to move the seat of Government to Orizaba. It is reported that there are 2000 Mexican troops at Alvarado.

Senor Atocha, Commissioner from the United States had reached the Capitol of Mexico, and offered the government fifteen millions of dollars for the twenty sixth parallel as the boundary line between the two countries.

He was unfavorably received at Vera Cruz and Mexico and was ordered out of the latter city, to await an answer to his proposals, which were reported to have been sent to Santa Anna, who was on his way to Saltillo.

The army in Vera Cruz was in a sick and destitute condition. There were 5000 men in the city and the castle of San Juan d'Ullos, part of them well disciplined. The Puente Nacional being fortified, Canalizo would occupy Jalapa with 6000 men.

Twenty Americans had been captured near San Juan. The blockade is violated with impunity.

Gen Scott had commenced landing the United States troops at a point below Vera Cruz.

Later.

There has been an arrival at New Orleans from the Brazos.

A rumor prevailed at the latter place, that Gen Taylor had fallen back on Monterey hotly pursued by 25,000 Mexicans led by St Anna. This rumor was not believed in New Orleans.

Capt Hughes arrived at New Orleans on the 11th inst having left Gen Taylor in Camp at Agunueva, on the 19th ult with 5,000 men and he intended remaining there till the 1st of April when he would move forward in the direction of San Luis Potosi.

But an Express arrived at Mattamoras on the 26th ult from Col Curtis at Camargo with orders dated at Seralvo on the 23d ult to stop all transportation to Camargo and Monterey.

Morgan's Regiment was to leave Seralvo at daylight on the 24th ult—destination unknown. Morgan received his orders direct from General Taylor.

It was rumored that Gen Mejia had thrown a large force into Linares, preparatory to attacking Matamoras Brazos and Point Isabel—which places were but poorly defended.

It is certain that Santa Anna has a large body of men in Gen Taylor's neighborhood—whether for a general battle, or an attack upon our defensive posts, or again, to conceal the advance of his main body to Vera Cruz.

Senor Atocha, United States Commissioner to Mexico, had returned to Washington.

The latest advice we see from Chihuahua are to the 16th of January, a fortnight later than former accounts. The city had not been taken by our troops, nor do we see any thing said of their advance upon it.

BALL'S PURE RUBBER MACHINE BELTING,
For Sale by LUKE C. CHILDS, 67 Water St. BOSTON.
THE above superior article is fast superceding the use of leather Belting, as for most purposes it is in every way better. Its good qualities are that no degree of moisture will affect it, and it will bear almost any degree of heat. It is of equal width and thickness throughout, and requires only one lacing on the longest belt. Practical mechanics, who have used this particular manufacture, think there is a gain of 15 to 25 per cent in the movement of the machinery, as it is perfectly flexible, and runs with much less strain upon the pulleys and drums.
Also for sale as above—HOSE, and other Goods of Rubber material. 1aw6m feb 23

WILD CHERRY and TAR,
Pulmonary Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Influenza, Bronchitis, Pleurisy, Difficulty of Breathing, Pains in the Breast or Side, Spitting of Blood, Croup, Hooping-Cough, Palpitation of the Heart, Nervous Tremors, &c.
☞ In introducing this medicine to the public, we deem it proper to state for the information of those at a distance, that it is the preparation of a regular graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, a physician of twenty years practice. To show the standing of Dr Davis, and the character of his medicine, we offer the following editorial notices from newspapers of Philadelphia:—
From the American Sentinel, Dec. 16, 1845.
In our advertising columns will be found a notice of Dr Davis's Comp and Syrup of Wild Cherry and Tar. In Dr W. we recognise a respectable physician of this city, and we have had placed before us, and shall publish, from respectable citizens, the most satisfactory evidence of the extraordinary virtues of his medicine.
From the Spirit of the Times Dec 15, 1845.
We ask attention to the advertisements of Dr Davis's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Tar. Dr D. is a respectable physician of this city, of many years practice, and his medicine is supported by most ample and satisfactory testimonials.—Among the certificates we observe the names of a number of well known and respectable citizens.
From the Christian Repository, Dec 13, 1845
We insert in another column an advertisement of Messrs. Robinson & Collins of this city, to which we take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers. We do this more especially from the card of Mr. Carnes which is supposed to be. Mr. B. is a member of the M. E. Church in good standing, and those who know him personally (as we do) have the fullest confidence in any statement he may give of the efficacy of any medicine which he may have tested.
From the Phila. Daily Keystone, Nov 28, 1845.
A Valuable Medicine.—On Monday, we will commence publishing a series of testimonials in favor of a new and popular medicine for pulmonary diseases—Dr Davis's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Tar. We are happy to say that we are personally acquainted with the respectable physician, as well as with a number of the certifiers, who are gentlemen of respectability, and every confidence may be placed in their statements. It strikes us that a medicine under such auspices, is entitled to the attention of the afflicted.
From the Native Eagle, Dec. 1, 1845.
We refer our readers to our advertising columns for a notice of Dr Davis's Syrup of Wild Cherry and Tar, for affections of the Lungs; a seasonable deliverance at the present juncture, when half Boston has so suddenly laid his rough hand upon us, producing coughs and colds about our land. Other diseases will be continued from day to day. We may add that we are acquainted with Dr Davis, and also with a number of the persons who testify to the good effects of the medicine, and can vouch for their respectability and its genuineness.
The above medicine may be procured of Messrs. Brown, Chapin & Whittier, Nos. 15 and 16 Commercial street Boston; and also of Messrs. HALL & YOUNG, No. 4 Smith's Block, Bangor; Agents for this section of the State.

The former "New England House," alias Washingtonian House," has been recently enlarged, re-modeled, thoroughly repaired, and opened by the subscribers, as the BANGOR TEMPERANCE HOUSE.
To the Public we beg leave to say, that in the entire renovation of his House, the proprietors had in view the comfort and convenience of the travelling community, since then "dollars and cents"—that in fitting up and furnishing we e designed to place its rank with the first Hotels in New England.
Strict Temperance principles in its management, we pledge ourselves to adhere to—and aside from alcoholic drinks, we endeavor to give our patrons accommodations inferior to no other House, and on as reasonable terms.
Connected with this establishment is a good STABLE, with an experienced Ostler always on hand, and at home in this department.
